DEVELOPMENT THAT WILL SOON MAKE IT A DIVIDEND-PAYER.

Railroad Bills Before Congress Said to Be Shelved--The Wisdom of Pension Schemes Questioned.

On no road in Central Traffic Association territory have greater improvements been made in the condition of the property and in developing its business than on the Peoria & Eastern. Ten years ago M. F. Ingalls, president of the Big Four, and John Newell, late president of the Lake Shore, made a trip over the line for the purpose of ascertaining the condition of the property, knowing at the time that its financial condition was not of a promising character. On their return from the trip, when asked what they thought of the property, Mr. Newell answered that it was "a mighty good road to let alone; its only thirty years of continuous service, track deep in the mud, its business unsatisfactory and its finances in bad shape." Mr. Ingalls did not take so despondent a view of the road and its probable outcome. and he at once set about taking steps to secure the road in the interests of the Big Four syndicate and to remove from this territory a road which was a great rate demoralizer, both in passenger and freight business. Mr. Ingalis reorganized the company, borrowed money from the Big Four | He was born in Calais, Me., Feb. 3, 1836 road proper to at once improve its condition, and in the ten years the road has been operated under his direction the western division has been converted into a firstciass road, laid with heavy steel rails and new steel bridges. Some of the best equipment of the Big Four was transferred to the Peoria & Eastern, and now in its passenger and freight service it is not obliged to take a back seat to any of its competitors. After placing the western division in good shape, two years ago he turned his attention to the eastern division, which extends from Indianapolis to Springfield, O., and while the improvements on this division are not yet completed a large mileage has been laid with new steel, the road proper cross-tied and ballasted with gravel, stations have been remodeled and the division properly equipped, and with its improved condition its passenger business has increased handsomely and its fast freight service is drawing additional business to the road. The earnings of the road for 1900 will pay the interest on funded debt, operating expenses and for the improvement of the roadbed, leaving quite a hand- Durbin did, however, find time to give out some surplus to pay off its indebtedness to the Big Four for money advanced from time to time to bring the property to its present higher standard. This year Pres- of Terre Haute which will be made later ident Ingalls said the earnings will be ample to give a surplus which will liquidate its indebtedness to the Big Four, and next year there will be a surplus to pay a dividend, as all its liabilities, except interest on its funded debt and that of current expenses, will be out of the way, and as the road, as now organized, has a small bonded debt per mile, he thinks its future is very promising. Indianapolis road. The management of the Wabash lines has issued an order which prohibits the use of intoxicants by employes before reporting for duty or while on duty. While this was a wise measure, and will be approved by patrons of the road, it seems to have been disapproved by some of the employes, and a number of firemen and brakemen are said to have quit the service and gone to other roads. Statistics show that wherever the prohibitive rule has been in effect the number of accidents has been materially de-

In commenting on the pension plan, a director of the Illinois Central road says the matter has been discussed but nothing has yet been done. There seems to be much difference of opinion as to the wisdom of these pension schemes. They are supposed to be prompted by philanthropic motive, but many arguments might be advanced to show that the welfare of railway employes is not insured by a plan which, after would allow them only a pittance after being forced to retire from work. If all the railroads should adopt the rule included in all pension plans, not to employ men over thirty or thirty-five years of age, there would soon be an army of unemployed railway men.

May Be Built of Granite.

There is a growing feeling that the limit of cost of the Indianapolis public building should be raised $350,000 so it can be constructed of white marble or enduring granite. The design is classic, and architects say that one or the other of these materials is the only suitable material for a building of classic architecture. The plans call for limestone, an unsuitable material for classic work, the architects say.

MRS. ETTIE HOOVER IS ATTEMPTING TO RECOVER $1,000.

She Claims Her Husband Used Her Money in Speculation-Other Cases in the Courts.

The alluring market quotations chalked up on a blackboard were responsible for a suit in Judge Carter's court for the recovery of money lost in a chase for wealth. The plaintiff is Mrs. Ettie Hoover, who is Growe, and others for the recovery of $1,-000 her husband and another man, who judgment in market speculation. Mrs. Hoover and her husband were on the stand most of yesterday. Mrs. Hoover said that when they were married she had about $1,200 which was placed in the bank by her husband. Later, she says he drew the money out at the solicitation of a man named Schofield, who represented that buying stocks and investing at the market exchange was a quick road to riches. She stated that she did not know her husthe time and was unaware of his intention. When it came to an accounting the adverse investiments turned up and a suit against the brokers followed.

When Hoover was on the stand there was much questioning about his investmeits. It seems that his choice backed by his friend's advice was Northern Pacific. Two hundred shares were held and until the markets suddenly started down an inclined plane at the rate of a dollar a point for each share of stock, the brightest hopes were entertained. At this time Hoover sald Schoffeld came to him and asked him how much he could "stand." Hoover stood as much as his purse would allow and when the bottom was reached and Northern Pacific still kept going on down at a hopeless rate, the climax came. Hoover could "stand" no longer and the money was forever gone. Hoover at vested in sugar on his own judgment and was five points ahead when he thought he sold out. Later, when the bottom fell out of sugar, and he was congratulating himself on his good judgment and the fact that he had disposed of his holdings while prices were up, he was informed that he had failed to sell when he was five points ahead and the sugar funds went with those of the Northern Pacific.

EHRISMAN LITIGATION.

Mary A. Blanchard Secures a Judgment and Decree of Foreclosure.

Judge Carter yesterday announced a finding for the plaintiff, a judgment for $3,486.84 and a decree of foreclosure in the suit of Mary A. Blanchard against Jacob Ehrisman. This ends a long line of litigation that has been pending in the county courts were mutually agreed upon by the late for several years. The Ehrisman litigation started when Samuel Ehrisman, son of Jacob Ehrisman, died. He had a commonlaw wife whom Judge Harvey, then on the Superior Court bench, held was legally entitled to his property. Jacob Ehrisman brought suit to have the marriage set aside at his death, as a marriage ceremony had been performed a few months before he It was alleged that he was of unsound mind when he married his wife in view of the fact that he died in the Insane Hospital a short time afterward. How Mary Blanchard came to be enangled in the litigation was by advancing her brother, Jacob Ehrisman, $4,000 with which to start his son in the milling business. When the son died his wife released her interest in the mill and other property rights for a consideration, and the elder Ehrisman assumed the responsibility of the mortgage his sister had taken on the mill. He did not pay it on the grounds that his sister had lived with him for several years and it was worth that amount to keep her.

BURNS SENTENCED.

Judge Alford Convinced that He Was Feigning Insanity.

Arthur G. Burns, who has acted the part of an insane man in the county jail and Criminal Court for several days, was yesterday sentenced to from one to three years in the Reformatory by Judge Alford, on a charge of stealing a diamond ring from Minnie Cole. Judge Alford says he believes Burns is feigning insanity and that he has played the role of an insane man and escaped the law in different cities when he should have received a sentence. In the courtroom, yesterday, Burns was even more hysterical than usual, and when the judge was talking he wildly looked around and cried: "They are coming, they are coming; the angels are coming." Before he was led out he dropped at the feet of Deputy Comer and offered a fervent prayer and then took up his usual cry of "the angels are coming." His case is still a mystery. The mother had separated from her husband at the persuasion of her sister, and was not able to keep the child. When she learned it was about to be adopted, by Mr. and Mrs. George A. Richards, she went to the probate department and asked to have her child returned. The father, who is a miner living at Odin, Ill., when he learned of it, had a reconciliation with his wife, and also objected. Yesterday Judge Walker received a letter from him saying he would consent to the adoption if it be made direct and not through the Orphans' Home and if Mr. and Mrs. Richards would agree to make her their sole heir and give her a cellege education.

Second Trial of Damage Suit.

Edwin E. Getter, an intinerant photographer, has a suit against the street car company that was tried before Judge Leathers yesterday, for the second time, the jury in the former trial failing to agree. Getter came to Indianapolis when the Knights of Pythias held their encampment here in 1898 and hired a negro named William Bullitt, who drove a transfer wagon, to haul his photograph outfit to the park. Bullitt was driving north on Central avenue when he was run down by a street car. The wagon was crowded against a trolley pole and demolished, leaving nothing but scraps of what was once a respectable photographer's equipment. The horse pulled away and ran off. The old negro has died since the former trial and his testimony at that time was introduced in court as his deposition.

He contends that the board has precedence over the City Council in regulating the salaries of policemen and firemen, and says it would be as logical to say the board cannot fine firemen for neglect of duty. It is said there are fifty-six suits now in the hands of attorneys awaiting the decision in this case.
